Search For Son Reveals Body At Bottom Of Tank

Little Lad Had Climed To Top Of Eight Foot Tank To Sail Boat

PULMOTOR USED WITHOUT AVAIL

Believe Boy Had Been On Bottom For Fifteen Minutes Before Discovery

William Grebenc, 7-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grebenc of Bessemer, was drowned in a tank of water at an oil well operated by the Premium Oil Company, about 9 o'clock Sunday evening.

The oil well at which there is an engine house, is located a short distance from the Grebenc home. .At the well is a large tank, about 8 feet high, which is used to hold water for cooling the engine. When Mr. and Mrs. Grebenc missed their son, Sunday evening, Mr. Grebenc and an uncle of the boy went out to look for him.

Find Body

As he frequently played around the engine house they went there. Entering they saw a couple of posts or poles leaning up against the tank, and upon investigation, found William lying at the bottom in about five feet of water.

Constable A. A. Shoup was among the first to arrive after the boy was found. He attempted to revive him by artificial respiration. Dr. Campbell was away when first called, but

PA NEWC OBSERVES

One of the Pa Newcs found himself caught in the fast current of the Perry highway traffic yesterday and from Mercer to Harlansburg he had to move on at a speedy clip. If your speedometer don't register the half hundred mark while traveling on the Perry you soon find yourself among the blacksheep.

After traveling a short distance on the Perry highway you know why it is given the right of way at Harlansburg instead of the New Castle to Franklin highway. And you understand why motorists who disregard those signs figure in the worst wrecks of the state. Someone comes to the front of the room with the suggestion that a stuffed black cat be hoisted at that corner because some people believe in that kind of a sign a lot more than the other.

Noticed a Burton explosives truck on the street the other day and it had softly padded bumpers in front and rear, designed to absorb shocks.

The New Wilmington to Mercer paved-highway-to-be is not coming along quite as quickly as was expected, but in a month or so it will be complete and will be another link in a golden chain of roads winding through this region. The road is paved part way now and the work is progressing steadily. This road will join New Wilmington with the great Perry highway.

A workman on the New Wilmington to Mercer road which is being paved is patting himself on the back for having a good pair of eyes. He had his pick raised to his shoulder and was just about to heave

Four Condemned Slayers Die At Rockview Today

All Four Go To Their Death In Electric Chair For Killing Near Johnstown

EXECUTIONS TAKE BUT 28 MINUTES

First Quadruple Electrocution In Commonwealth In More Than Four Years

(International News Service)

ROCKVIEW PENITENTIARY, Bellefonte, Pa., Aug. 17.—Four men died in Pennsylvania's electric chair today.

In a space of 28 minutes four bolts of electricity in the death house of Rockview prison wrote a smashing finale to the careers of Joseph Parsi, Frank Powell, Frank Cantilla and Carl Crow, all of Johnstown.

All went to their death for the murder of Louis Hoffman on a farm near Johnstown in 1928 in a dispute over hiding of a liquor shipment. It was the first quadruple execution in the commonwealth in more than four years.

Parsi led the grim procession into the execution chamber promptly at seven a. m. Two minutes later a ripping shock of 2,000 volts of electricity was hurled into his body and he was pronounced dead at 7:07 a. m.

Two minutes later Powell was led into the execution chamber and strapped into the chair. The current was applied and Powell was pronounced dead just five minutes later.

Cantilla came next in the parade of death. He was nervous and trembling and leaned for support upon two guards as he listened to Rev. Leslie McCreesh, Catholic chaplain at the prison, intoned the litany for the dying.

Supported by his guards, Cantilla shuffled from the entrance to the death chair and was assisted into it. At 7:16 a. m. the current was applied and at 7:22 a. m. Dr. W. A. Barrett, prison physician, pronounced him dead.

Crow was led into the chamber four minutes later.

Four Meet Death In Plane Crashes

Two Killed At Jonesboro, Illinois, And Two Others Meet Death At De Kalb, Ill.

ALL OF VICTIMS ARE YOUNG MEN

(International News Service)

JONESBORO, Ill., Aug. 17.—Glenn Joram, 21, Pilot, of Cobden and Frank Willey, 25, postmaster of Alto Pass, were dead today as the result of an airplane crash here late yesterday.

The young aviator had been conducting pleasure flights here for the past three days.

Life Belt Breaks

DE KALB, Ill., Aug. 17.—A broken life belt was blamed today for the death of two men in an airplane crash at the county airport near here yesterday.

According to witnesses, Allen Glassburn, 21, pilot made a steep bank at an altitude of 1,000 feet when Joseph Keyser 25 was thrown out of the rear cockpit. The suddeness of his descent sent the plane into a tailspin. The broken safety belt which threw him out was found in the wreckage.

Both men were residents of Dixon and were making a test flight of the plane before purchasing it.

Colonel And Mrs. Lindbergh Seek Favorable Weather For Next Hop to Nemuro

WARM GREETING FOR VACATIONISTS

Despite Overhanging Clouds Lindberghs Complete 550-Mile Hop In Good Time

By JAMES P. YOUNG
International News Service Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, Aug. 17—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were at Petropavlovsk, Kamchatka, today getting ready for the next hop of their journey to Tokyo and around the world.

According to the schedule of the famous airman and his wife, they were to leave Petropavlovsk tomorrow, but the newspaper Otchisi reported today that the start for Nemuro, Japan, would be made today because of approaching unfavorable weather.

Otchisi later reported that the vacationing flyers had already left Petropavlovsk, but this proved erroneous.

Center of Interest

The Lindbergs were the center of attention of Petropavlovsk today, the humble population of Japanese, Russian and Mongol gold miners and fishermen and fur-trappers doing them every honor in their power.

After a flight down the desolate Siberian coast from Karagin Island the Lindberghs black plane came to rest in Petropavlosk harbor at 3 p. m. Saturday (2 a. m. Sunday E. D. T.)

Captain Hawks Is Given Fine At Burlington

Burlington, Vermont, Officials Fine American Speed King For Illegal Entry

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Captain Frank Hawks, American speed flyer, today declined to comment on the action of American customs officials at Burlington, Vt., who fined him $500 for landing illegally in the United States after a flight from Montreal.

Hawks reached here last night, flying from Springfield, Mass., in 46 minutes.

Hawks and Miss Maude Catte of Springfield, flying separate planes, were met by officials on an aviation field at Burlington on their arrival from Montreal and reprimanded for not reporting their entry when crossing the boundry line from Canada. Later the assessment against Hawks was announced.

Washington, Aug. 17.—The $500 fine imposed upon aviator Frank Hawks for landing illegally in this country after a flight from Montreal, will be remitted to him by the customs service, it was learned at the treasury department today.

Dempsey And Wife Prepare To File Divorce Actions

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 17.—All negotiations for a property settlement between Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion, and Estelle Taylor, movie actress, have ended and their anticipated divorce battle is expected to begin this week, perhaps today.

In Reno Jack was prepared to file his suit for divorce this week.

In the opposite corner of the ring, in Los Angeles, Miss Taylor said: "If Jack insists on suing in Reno, I will instruct my attorney, Joseph Scott, to open my divorce battle in Los Angeles, where it should be fought."

NEW PLUMAGE FOR FLYING HAWK

A comely Sioux Indian maiden is shown putting the chief's war bonnet on the head of Captain Frank Hawks, America's premier speed merchant, after he had been named Cetan Kinyan, which, appropriately enough, means "Flying Hawk." Hawks flew to Hot Springs, Va., where the ceremony took place, in record time and flew back to New York after his "coronation" with this picture.

Smith Claims He Was Offered Million To Quit Senate Fight

Frank L. Smith, Contends Julius Rosenwald, Offered Him Cool Million

Won Senate Seat In 1926 But Was Denied Oath Of Office For Expenditures

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—In a 16-page statement issued at Dwight, Ill., Frank L. Smith, who was denied a seat in the United States Senate after winning the 1926 campaign, alleged that Julius Rosenwald, noted merchant philanthropist, offered him Sears & Roebuck stock valued at $550,000 if he would withdraw from the race.

Smith disclosed the "hitherto suppressed chapter of the facts" in that campaign in answer to "The Case of Frank L. Smith", a book recently published by Prof. Carroll H. Wooddy of the University of Chicago. Smith's open letter, written to Prof. Wooddy, charged the book was sponsored and financed by Rosenwald.

Rosenwald is an invalid and members of his family said they "are unwilling to bring to his attention the controversy between Prof. Wooddy and Smith." Wooddy gave a non-committal statement declaring he had "no comment to make on the alleged details of the interview between Mr. Smith and Mr. Rosenwald in October, 1926, which are

WILL ROGERS says:

(Special To The News)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 17. — Farm Board destroying every third row of cotton is the nub of a great idea. What could give more relief than extinguishing every third senator, every third congressman, every third committee, every third stock broker, every third law.

Make a third of the vice presidents of concerns go back to work. Turn the cows back into every third golf course. Convict every third gangster arrested. One-third of all millionaires that issue optimistic reports from aboard yachts.

Destroy one-half the newspaper columnists, and last, but the main thing the matter with the whole world is, there is too many people, shoot every third one. This whole plan is inexpensive and a surefire scheme back to prosperity.

Local Guard Outfit Makes Fine Showing In Camp Maneuvers

Continuing to demonstrate their ability which has won approval of National Guard officers who have inspected the local guard in the past, New Castle's own unit in the state guard, Troop F, surprised other outfits at Mount Gretna this past week by winning laurels in tests held for all troops.

Word was received today form Louis B. Round, chairman of the outfit's civilian sponsoring committee that the local guardsmen came in fourth out of 21 troops from the 52nd. Cavalry Brigade in competitive exercises, platoon leadership, test and combat firing. The headquarters troop came in first, Troop B, 103rd Cavalry came second, Troop A, 104th, third.

The percentage ranged from 82.58 high to 56.16 low, with Troop F receiving a percentage of 77.23.

Round, in describing the work of the local troop wires:

"F" is functioning like clockwork. Lieut. Mitchell, mounted on Ski, rode point to point on the course today and came out in sixth place out of 40 entries. This was a real test. New Castle has a real troop at camp this year and about the only 100 per cent attendance outfit at the camp. The sponsoring committee is more than pleased with the progress shown."

The four-day hike started this morning and "F" was expected to come out the leader in the coming events for the different troops. At present the morale is exceedingly high and the equipment in excellent shape.

VALENTINE, Tex., Aug. 17.—Geologists speculated today on the earthquake that damaged practically every building in this town yesterday and was felt for a wide distance. State Acts To End Pollution In Slippery Rock

Telegram To Department Brings Order To Warden To Investigate

SULPHUR WATER THOUGHT REASON

Quick action has been taken to remedy the Slippery Rock creek pollution following the report that for the second time in several years practically all the fish in the creek have been killed.

Immediately following the discovery of the condition of the stream Senator George T. Weingartner wired to the Department of Fisheries for an investigation of Slippery Rock creek.

The department in Harrisburg replied to the senator that State Fish Warden Simmons of Rochester, Pa., has begun an investigation.

Trout and fine specimens of bass along with other fish were found killed by the hundreds. A similar pollution occurred about four years ago and local sportsmen acted to prevent another pollution. The pollution is believed to come from mines in Mercer county, although this is not certain.

(International News Service)

KANE, Pa., Aug. 17 — Police of this city today scoured heavily-forested sections near here for Charles Rusalene, 44, in connection with the brutal murder of Silvio White, 39, of Ludlow, late last night.

White was slain when a bottle was broken over his head and the jagged neck of the bottle plunged into his neck. He died almost instantly.

Witnesses to the murder, which occurred in White's home, where he was entertaining friends, said that Rusalene entered the house and demanded a $10 loan from White. The latter handed over the bill, only to have it torn into bits by Rusalene and tossed on the floor, witnesses told police.

Rusalene then asked for $20 police were told.

"What do you think Iam, a fool?" White was quoted as retorting in refusing the request.

Enraged, Rusalene attacked him, witnesses reported, and vanished into the woods nearby under cover of darkness.

An old grudge was advanced as a motive for the crime.

East Texas Oil Wells Closed By National Guard

Proration Laws Not Lived Up To; Governor Sterling Invokes Martial Law

RICH OIL FIELDS BEING DISSIPATED

Wells Affected Have Been Producing 740,000 Barrels Of Oil Per Day

(International News Service)

KILGORE, Tex., Aug. 17.—National Guard troops, under orders to close every oil well in East Texas, marched into the field early today, prepared to carry out the governor's edict.

Troops had been concentrated in and around Kilgore and when the governor's martial law proclamation and shutdown order became effective at six A. M. marching orders were issued at once.

Approximately 1,500 troops were divided into 15 commands, each assigned a "sector" in which to operate, and it was expected to be only a matter of hours until the majority of the wells had been closed.

No resistance was expected. A number of operators, in fact, voluntarily closed down their wells last night when definite assurance was received that martial law would be declared.

Cuban Rebels Still Active

Rebel Sympathizers Declare Dr. Mendez Penate Is Directing Revolt

CLAIM BACKBONE OF REVOLT IS BROKEN

(International News Service)

HAVANA, Aug. 17.—Despite the fact that bands of rebels were still operating in various parts of the island, especially in the Province of Santa Clara, the Cuban revolution appeared near its end today.

Rebel sympathizers here, however, declared that Dr. Mendez Penate was still in the field and the capture of General Menocal and Colonel Mendieta had not left the revolution without leadership.

They insisted that the success of the revolt depended chiefly on whether or not its leaders had provided enough supplies. Enough Cubans were ready to do the fighting necessary to overturn President Machado, they declared.

President Machado was still at Santa Clara today directing his troops from the governor's mansion there.

And other days you can roll it out and the effort is merely play, but they will not fell at the present time, weather's seventy nine today.

Hundreds Visit Girl Scouts At Camp Phillips

Second Week Of Camp Is Under Way With Eighty Girls In Attendance

Sunday, the only visiting day for parents and friends of Girl Scouts at Camp John M. Phillips on the Slippery Rock, was a gala day at the biggest and best camp yet held by the New Castle Girl scouts. Over three hundred guests were present visiting the girls and it proved most enjoyable not only for the visitors but the girls and their counselors.

The second week of the girl scout camp opened Sunday with eighty girls in camp and a staff of fourteen counselors under the supervision of Miss Nance Pugh, girl scout director.

Saturday evening after the general get together, the units held separate campfires. The Never Never Land held a mock trial, the Sherwood Forest Unit did singing games and story telling, while the Knights had a mock wedding.

The vespers or Scout Own on Sunday evening was a very beautiful and instructive campfire. Miss Leona Sankey, dramatic counselor was in charge. It opened with several lovely lullabies to the Sleepy Hollow Tune and The Curly Headed Baby. Then followed a suitable dramatization with Honey Raney, Ruth Connors and Julia Buerger as principals and assisted by the Pioneer unit. Nancy Westlake read a star poem. Miss Sankey gave a star legend about Vega. Martha Nell Shaffer gave Sara Teasdale's poem. After taps, all the scouts went off the bed.

it to the ground when he noticed a small fuse in the ground. The fuse was attached to a stick of dynamite!

A picturesque Sunday drive for New Castle motorists is to Polk, Pa. Pa Newc made the trip yesterday and found it very enjoyable. Go to Harlansburg, Mercer, Jackson Center, Stonebore and then into Polk. It is only a few miles to Franklin from there and many people make the Franklin and Oil City trip via Polk instead of Slippery Rock and Harrisville.

Now that there is no longer a gate and watchman at the railroad crossing at the foot of the Croton avenue hill motorists should learn to watch the danger signal lights with hawk eyes. There are not as many trains on those tracks as there used to be—but they hit just as hard as ever.

Well, were you among one of the disappointed ones who waited at the diamond Saturday evening to drive the new car away?

New Castle's three day Dollar sale came to a close with a flourish Saturday night with every store along Washington street filled with customers up to the time of closing.

Traveling along the state highways one notes that considerable improvement has been made in regard to the trouble telephones maintained at scattered points, For a while the boxes seemed to get little attention from the caretakers, but it's different now. They've all been newly painted.

One of the Pa Newcs, just returned from a stay along Chautauqua Lake, N. Y., happened to be handy when Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd came there to address one of Chautauqua's largest crowds. He spoke to 9,000 or more in the huge amphitheatre there. Interest in his South Pole trip it's plain to see has not waned a trifle.

And speaking of Chautauqua Lake brings to mind mental pictures of a resort lake, similar in size, in that section of northwestern Pennsylvania above Sharon. The Pymatuning dam project will make possible a lake about as large, according to estimates of engineers.

Vacationists at different places find conditions almost the opposite from what one might expect during these times. A scarcity of cottages and better camp facilities exists at different northern lakes this year, a condition not experienced for some time. Natives of the resorts say the depression has sent many to camp in the out-or-doors this year.

The post office here inaugurated its Saturday half-day holiday schedule on Saturday. All windows except those of the stamp and general delivery booth were closed at 12:30. The latter closed at 5:30.

What has become of the talk about the selection of a fire pumper for the second ward fire station? Not long ago a committee of councilmen spent some time traveling to the different fire apparatus manufacturers for the sole purpose of viewing apparatus to make a selection for New Castle. The committee returned and the citizens were ready to hear what had been selected. No more has been heard, although the officials had promised to announce their selection.

Meanwhile the second ward fire station is still without a real piece of apparatus. If the pumper is to be chosen, now is the proper time, since it will take about 60 days to deliver after the purchase is announced. If the selection is permitted to wait until winter, the delay may be risky to the ward, where property owners cannot wait until the middle of winter when fire is liable to endanger homes in the district.

An infinitesimal insect, called the "trippe," has been the drawback for gladiolus growers this summer, one floral specialist told Pa Newc today. He displayed it at work on the flowers. The harm it has done was even felt by the National Gladiolus show which closed yesterday at Cleveland, something which has seldom occurred before. Heretofore, growers expressed the belief that the gladiolus was disease free.

best known to the principals themselves."

Account Is Given

Smith gave a detailed account of the interview, written in the third person, and not from memory, as he wrote what happened immediately after the conference.

The offer of 10,000 shares of Sears-Roebuck stock, which at its peak would have given Smith about $2,000,000, was made to further the candidacy of Hugh S. Magill, who was sponsored by Rosenwald, Smith's statement asserts. Magill, an independent Republican, was running against Smith, regular G. O. P. nominee, and the late George E. Brennan, Democrat. Smith, although elected, was denied a seat on the charge that his campaign expenditures were "scandalous". It was disclosed that Samuel Insull, public utilities magnate, was a large contributor to the Smith campaign fund.

Turns Down Million

Smith quotes Rosenwald as saying: "If I will give $500,000 to have Magill elected, why not give Frank Smith $500,000 and have him withdraw?" Smith's withdrawal at that date, a day after the close of filing, would have left the field to Magill and Brennan.

Later Rosenwald is quoted as telling Smith: "You're the first man I have known to refuse a million dollars."

Smith said he declined the proposal without hesitation and Rosenwald predicted Smith could never be seated because of the Insull contributions.

Policemen R. A. Criswell and Ray Showalter rushed to Bessemer with the Pulmotor, and made heroic efforts to save the boy, working on him until after midnight but without result.

Indications were that William had climbed up the side of the tank in order to play with a toy boat, which he was manipulating by means of a stick. He had lost his balance and fallen in. It is believed he had been in the water about 15 minutes when found.

Coroner J. P. Caldwell, who investigated the case, gave a certificate of accidental drowning.

The deceased boy is survived by his parents, two brothers and three sisters. Funeral Wednesday at 2 p. m. Interment in the Jugo-Slavic cemetery at Bessemer.

EAST TEXAS OIL WELLS CLOSED BY NATIONAL GUARD

Governor Ross Sterling put East Texas' four oil producing counties under martial law today and ordered every oil well in the entire district closed down at once.

The proclamation made martial effective at 6 A. M. today and Brigadier General Jacob F. Wolters, whose troops had already been mobilized at Kilgore, was under orders to start closing down the wells today.

Gregg, Upshur, Rusk and Smith counties were affected by the order. The four counties have approximately 1,650 oil wells, which have been producing around 740,000 barrels per day.

State Of Insurrection

The governor's order declared that "A state of insurrection." Exists in certain quarters against the state conservation laws and that as a result, injured land and royalty owners threaten "By force of arms" to overcome the situation.

"There exists an organized and entrenched group of crude petroleum oil and natural gas producers," the proclamation read, "Who are in a state of insurrection against the laws of the state relating to the prevention of waste of crude petroleum oil and natural gas, and in open rebellion against the efforts of constituted civil authorities to enforce such laws.

"The existing condition has brought about a state of public feeling on the part of the citizens, that if the state government cannot or fails to protect the public interest and the interest of the land and royalty owners they will attempt to take the law into their own hands, and by force of arms shut down the producing oil wells in said defined district until the state can and will enforce the conservation laws."

Authorities Powerless

The proclamation said that local authorities in the oil fields acknowledged their inability to enforce the conservation laws and that as a result of the widespread violation of the law the rich oil fields were being dissipated and wasted.

"By reason of the reckless, unlawful and criminal handling of producing wells in said district," the order said, "Water is being rapidly drawn into the oil sands, thereby creating enormous physical waste of crude petroleum oil and more than 1,000,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas rich in gasoline content, are being wasted, all of which causes a great loss in revenue to this state, and does, and will, affect the welfare of our educational institutions, including our common schools, eleemosynary institutions, and each and every state department of the state government and will increase the burden of taxation upon our people generally."

of the Pennsylvania National Guard this morning began one of the largest scale maneuvers ever attempted by mounted forces of the sate division.

A four-day road march with three night bivouacs, over a 75-mile territory, constant clashes with enemy planes and scouts and perhaps a sizeable cavalry combat were on the program for the troopers.

The Blue or defending army, moved out toward the Susquehanna river to secure the river crossings at Columbia and hold it at all costs against an enemy or Red column operating in the vicinity of York.

Cavalrymen Advance

Leading the long column of the sabre wielders was the second squadron of the 104th cavalry, with troops from Chambersburg, Waynesboro and Carlisle, under Major Ray O. Dunkle, acting as advance guard.

Next came the remainder of the 104th under Col. E. J. Stackpole, of Harrisburg, and the 103rd, composed of troops from Philadelphia and vicinity under Col. Arthur C. Colahan were third in line.

Bringing up the rear were the brigade trains, with field kitchens, water carts, staff cars, ambulances and provision wagon. A special detail of State Highway Patrolmen kept the road cleared for the advancing troops.

Moving south, the column marched fifteen and a half miles the first day and halted near Copenheffer, in Lancaster county, where camp was established not far from the river crossing at Columbia.

From the camp, the column will move to Columbia and take up a position to defend the crossing, preventing cutting of the defenders' communications and keeping open a route for troops movements. There, invaders and defenders will clash in an engagement expected to test the mettle and training of the cavalrymen.

Husband Held In Death Of Wife

Despite Death-Bed Statement That Shooting Was Accidental, Man Is Held

(International News Service)

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 17—Although before his wife died of a bullet wound through the right breast she declared her husband immune from guilt, Joseph Jarnott, 22, today was under $1,000 bond pending an inquest into the shooting and death. Mrs. Stella Jarnott 20, a bride of two years, and mother of two children, gasped out a story of the "unloaded gun" before she expired a few hours after the shooting.

According to the death bed story of the young wife, the couple was at their home in Export and Joseph was examining an automatic pistol which he did not know was loaded. He handed the weapon to Mrs. Jarnott and, as she handed it back, the weapon was discharged inflicting the mortal wound, she related. Coroner James Harris ordered the arrest pending the inquest.

COOK REUNION HELD AT COTTAGE

The annual Cook reunion was held Friday of last week at Kennywood cottage at Wilmington Junction.

The family, to the number of 54, gathered during the morning hours and at noon tables were spread on the lawn and lively bouquets of glodioli were used in the centerpieces. A most bounteous menu was served both at noon and in the evening.

The afternoon hours were given over to sports and races, with the sports committee, Goldie Blaine, Mrs. Pearl Cook and Mrs. Gladys Kennehan, in charge. Prizes were awarded the winners in the various contests.

A most unique feature of the entertainment was the "foolish" grand march held by the group and the winners in this were Claire Cook and Betty Kennehan; an especially pleasing number was the dance given by Cassie Hartsuff.

Officers chosen included Earl Cook, president; Mrs. Gladys Kennehan, vice president; Mrs. Pearl Cook, secretary and treasurer; press correspondent, Mrs. Clara Cook; the sport committee for next year will be Mrs. Gladys Kennehan, Claire Cook, Ralph Cook and Goldie Blaine.

TIFERETH ISRAEL PICNIC AT CASCADE

Most successful in every way, was the picnic outing held by the religious school of Tifereth Israel congregation at Cascade Park yesterday. An unusually large crowd numbering well into a hundred were present and enjoyed the sumptuous picnic dinner served in the grove at 5 o'clock.

At the conclusion of this feature a program of entertaining games, contests and sports were in progress for the children, prizes were awarded to those successful in their efforts at the close of the evening.

Swimming, dancing and the park amusements, furnished further pastime, which occupied the balance of the evening.

Edler Reunion.

The annual reunion of the Edler descendants was held on Saturday at Maplevale park, one mile north of Petersburg, O., with approximately 65 relatives and friends being present. Among the local folks who attended this event was Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Edler Eise of Norwood avenue.

At noon a sumptuous menu was served that included all good dishes that aid in making such an event a success. A business session followed and the re-election of the old officers occurred.

It was decided to held the next reunion at Yellow Creek park, located at Struthers, O., on the third Saturday in August, 1932.

After a program of sports and contests had been enjoyed by the guests, the hour of departure came. All present voted this outing the most successful ever held.

LET'S AVOID HYSTERICS

AT THE present time New Castle is in the throes of its quadrennial battle for mayor and the biennial battle for two members of council. Never a very peaceful time, the present fights promise more than the usual amount of heat and out of this heat has already come a multitude of promises that are nothing more than catch phrases to ensnare votes.

Perhaps the one that is being overworked the most is the promise to reduce taxes. Several candidates have promised to cut taxes down to a point where they will be no annoyance to pay. Others have made indefinite promises to reduce city expenditures by slashing salaries and firing employes.

Unfortunately, at a time of depression such as the present, the promise to reduce taxes sharply is one easily made and readily accepted by some people. Actually no candidate can do anything of the sort. While it is true undoubtedly that some small economies might be affected, that a little more efficiency might be exercised in the expenditure of the people's money, yet no candidate can honestly promise to make any violent reductions in taxes without impairing government.

When the next candidate tells you he is going to cut taxes away down, ask him how he expects to do it and just where he will start. True he might fire half the police force and half the firemen and thus show a savings of some money, but do we want this? Can we afford to jeopardize the enforcement of law and the protection of our property?

He might cut out the lighting of the streets but who is there who would suggest such a thing? He could save some money by not repairing the streets, cleaning the sewers, disposing of the garbage and then closing down the sewage disposal plant. But how long could such a condition obtain?

There are certain obligations the city has, heavy ones, which cannot be avoided. Interest must be paid, bonds must be retired, homes must be protected against fire, streets must be kept clean and lighted, sewers must be kept open and all of these cost money.

The time has come to call a halt upon the political charlatan who is willing to promise to bring about the Millennium in order to get himself enough votes to be elected. The time has come when the voter must sit down and realize that the way out of difficulty does not lie along the paths outlined by the political opportunist who harps upon a chord that has been popular since the days of Babylon, that of reducing taxes.

The News has no candidate for mayor or council. It is not interested in the names or the physical size of the men who will serve for the next four years. It is interested in good government, sane government, efficient government.

This paper believes that this is no time to trust the fortunes of the city to theorists, or to hobbyists. Running a city is too serious a business to permit half baked experiments. It requires judgment and a large measure of horse sense and it is earnestly to be hoped that the voters will consider these things when they cast their ballots on September 15th.

THE CASE OF INDIVIDUALISM

ITALY'S minister of justice sums up the fascist theory of government in the candid statement that, "fascism is the denial of individualism. The individual is only the means to achieve the noble purpose of the state. As a result we feel justified in suppressing those who would retard the progress of the state.

This has been familiar doctrine ever since the Greeks began to speculate concerning the political animal called Man. It has been violently assailed and resolutely defended. The ancient world leaned strongly toward the subjugation of the individual to the common will. Modern political theory has moved in the other direction, despite such notable examples as Hobbes and his political Leviathan and Hegel with his exaltation of the state as the highest expression of the human spirit.

More than a generation ago Herbert Spencer sounded a warning against the imminent despotism of the socialist state. Today there are socialists who, from their own point of view, demand the decentralization of the state. Whenever the power of the many threatens the interests of the comparatively few, the demand is raised for limiting the power of the many.

The fascist idea might be acceptable if the "noble purpose" of the state were to serve the individual citizen. And the great fault of these Spartan states is that while they pretend to be robbing the individual to pay the state they are in reality robbing the majority to pay the ruling minority.

And of what good is a great nation if its citizens have been deprived of every liberty, right and happiness in building it?

For Americans it must remain true that the power of the majority, even if on occasion arbitrarily exercised, is infinitely preferable to the arbitrary power of the handful or of one.

Six Buzzards in the Road What About Buzzards? What About Men Who Are Called 'Bad'?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

As we drove through the foothills between the brown fields of California we came suddenly around a sharp turn, and a great, dark bird rose sluggishly from the road in front of us.

A buzzard! He had been feasting on carrion beside the road. A little animal had died and the sharp eyes of the scavenger had seen the corpse as he floated languidly high above and he had dropped swiftly to his disgusting meal. He was beautiful, that buzzard, but he was disgusting, and the stink of his presence spoiled the beauty of the scene. . . . And when we returned that way a few moments later six buzzards instead of one flapped over the fence and rose toward the hills and their shadows moved swiftly across the green oaks and the summer fields.

One of us remembered Thoreau's terrible criticism, "The vultures that follow an army are an intolerable satire on mankind." And another of us remarked that buzzards will not eat fresh meat, but refuse the recently dead and wait until the poor body has become a pervading stench. I shared the disgust . . . and then, as if in defense of those scavenging birds, I remembered something that happened in Kansas several years ago. Five vultures, four just hatched and the fifth an adult, were brought to the Kansas Agricultural college and the professors experimented on them.

The young birds had never tasted decayed meat, the old bird was thin and dyspeptic. The professors wanted to know what the vultures would eat—if they were allowed to choose between fresh meat and bad. They learned.

The young birds accepted clean, fresh meat and preferred it. They throve on it and when they were offered rotten meat they refused it. Th older bird grew fat on fresh meat, lost his dyspepsia and finally would not touch the rotted meat.

Then, as I remembered those five vultures, I thought of men and women whom the world rejects as "no good". I though of the weak, the foolish, the undependable, the violent who are cast out and despised and who live furtive, evil and snarling lives because they have been told they are "no good" and told it so often that they have almost come to believe it themselves—to believe that something within them is twisted so that when they are given the choice they choose the bad and reject the good of life.

And though I saw these filthy birds making a disgusting meal in the dust of the road I knew that they preferred clean food. . . . And though I know there are men and women whom the world considers "no good," and though I myself have been tempted to use that phrase, deep down inside of me I know that men must be as wise as buzzards are and that there's not one of them who will choose the bad if he has half a chance to enjoy the good.

THE TRAMP DISCOVERS GOLF

The poor man looked across the fence which shut the golfers in
His shirt was frayed about his neck, the coat he wore was thin
A hopeless look was on his face, his brow was lined with care,
As silently he watched the men who played for pleasure there.

And one there was who missed a shot and flung his club away
As if to lose a golfing stroke had spoiled the summer day.
Came others passing, four by four, and worried men they looked.
Perturbed and plainly sick at heart because they sliced or hooked.

One cursed his luck so loudly that the poor man plainly heard.
He looked to see what tragedy distressing had occurred
But all he could discover was a little shinging ball
The man had swung a club at and had failed to hit at all.

He thought about his burdens and he thought about his plight,
He remembered that he didn't know where he would sleep at night,
And as he shuffled on his way, "Well, anyhow," said he,
"I should be glad the woes of golf have all been spared to me."

Hoof Beats

My dreams, like little ponies,
I begged to run ahead,
And canter to the Future.
They sought the past instead.

I held them to the Present,
But they could not be still;
Their hurried little hoof beats
Went clicking down the hill.

And soon I heard a whinny
That sounded far away,
And knew they had gone round the world
To look for Yesterday.

My ponies all came stumbling home.
Too tired for questioning more
I put them far back in my heart
And locked the stable door.

KIND WORDS

Ellwood City, Pa.
August 14, 1931.

Kind "Hints and Dints" Man:

I have felt for some time that I ought to write to you again and tell you how very much I enjoy your column. Sometime ago you published some poetry at my request. At that time I thanked you in advance, also told you how I liked to read "Hints and Dints"—after I get a chance to read the paper it is not long until I have turned to that page. It surely is rightly named. I gets hints, and occasionally (pardon that mistake) dints from reading it. There is so much truth in the items and so much charity over it all that I hope you never stop printing it.

What spurred me on to write just at present was the reading of two items of recent publication. One was regarding printing stories about those who have troubles and feel so badly about the publishing of them—how pleased I was that you took the attitude you did concerning such matters. The other item was about those who should not be trusted to do relief work. Kind Hints and Dints man, how I wish you would publish that again—on the front page of The News—in embossed letters with a request that every newspaper in U. S. would copy. We all feel that there will have to be a lot of relief given to the needy this winter. If everyone who does charitable work would go out and do it manifesting the spirit that you do, how much different poor folks would feel—people who, through no fault of their own, are in destitute circumstances.

Now keep up the good work. Every night or so I cut out some clippings to paste in my scrap book. I close wtih a bit of poetry taken from it, it seems to fit in so nicely.

"Tell Him Now."

Any work a man is doing,
If you like him, or you love him,
Tell him now.

And he lies with snowy lilies o'er his brow;
For no matter how you shout it,
He won't really care about it;
He won't know how many teardrops you have shed;
If you think some praise is due him
Now's the time to slip it to him,
For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead.

More than fame and more than money
If the comment kind and sunny
And the hearty, warm approval of a friend;
For it gives to live a savor
And it makes him stronger, braver,
And it gives him heart and spirit to the end;
If he earns your praise, bestow it;
If you like him, let him know it;
Let the words of true encouragement be said;
Do not wait till life is over
And he's underneath the clover;
For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead.

Public Finds Truth In Report Attacking Police Methods

Wickersham Study Of Use Of Third Degree Methods Meets with General Support And Politics Held Partly Responsible For Difficult Problem

General agreement with the Wickersham report criticising police administration in various American cities and showing the evils of the "third degree" is voiced by the public. It is stated that the facts set forth are widely known and that one of the chief difficulties in the way of finding a remedy is the alliance between police departments and politics.

"Some time true reform in policing must come," declares the PASADENA STAR-NEWS, "or the American people will demonstrate in a tragically inglorious manner, that they are incompetent to govern themselves as a democracy." The BALTIMORE SUN believes that "such brutalities as described violate fundamental rights and fundamental human feelings," and that the report "seems to rank the police in callousness and negation of ordinary human rights with the very worst of the offenders with whom they deal," and "encourages one to be suspicious of many of the 'confessions' and convictions obtained."

Believing that "unquestionably the commission has hit upon one of the weaknesses responsible for metropolitan crime waves" and that "inefficient police forces in large communities leave society almost helpless in the hands of criminal elements," the ANN ARBOR DAILY NEWS feels that "corrupt politics has something to do with it." The News continues: "There are other causes. One is combersome laws, burdened with technicalities that permit criminals to escape justice, particularly when criminals are sufficiently endowed with the world's goods to hire clever and unscrupulous lawyers. The police are always running against technicalities which are obstacles to arrest and punishment of outlaws. There are corrupt police, but likewise there are honest police and laws difficult to enforce."

The average member of a large force, in the judgment of the LEXINGTON LEADER, "is unable to do what he knows should be done in a thorough and impartial manner, because he is controlled by a machine which is allied in one way or another with crookedness and criminality." The PROVIDENCE JOURNAL contends, however, that "criminals have been quick to employ every new device and method useful to them, and the police slow to develop the means of retaliation." That paper adds: "The blame for lagging behind in the new swift race against modern crime cannot be laid wholly at the door of the police. The old ideas as to how society should be protected—the dogma of police work, handed down for generations—must be revised in the minds of citizens and municipal legislative bodies as well as in the minds of the police themselves before a fully effective change can be wrought. The police, granting them honesty and sincerity, do what they can with the money allotted for their work and with the freedom that they are given. If they are to do more they must in all probability have more freedom and more money with which to experiment, as well as the urge to do so."

"Observers are unanimous in charging prohibition with responsibility for more vice and graft than has ever been known before in this country," avers the OMAHA WORLD-HERALD, while the YOUNGSTOWN VINDICATOR asserts that the difficulty in meeting the situation is "to find the right kind of men," advising that "the commission sets up standards which few cities can meet, regardless of pay, because the men who possess them are not, as a rule, willing to become policemen."

"The proof of third-degree outrages upon the persons of prisoners is and must continue to be difficult," concludes the WASHINGTON EVENING STAR, emphasizing the fact that "there are always more police witnesses than prisoner witnesses, for the brutalities of torture are always perpetrated in secret." The NEWARK EVENING NEWS, in this connection, points out that "about half of the convictions obtained by torture throughout the country have been upset by higher courts, ample evidence that innocent persons often are victimized, and confess at last to anything for the sake of ending their agony." The HARTFORD TIMES, however, believes that "it would be a sentimentality to handle crooks always with gloves," and contends that "precisely where to draw the line between sternness and severity is not clear."

"Removal of political influence," thinks the OAKLAND TRIBUNE, "is a task of huge magnitude. Even where the political influence is not corrupt, a police department's freedom to act fearlessly may be considerably curtailed. Where the politicians in control of the police are crooked, the efficiency and morale of the department are at the mercy of the worst influences. Cities pointed out by the commission as having aggravated conditions of police deficiency will naturally turn to favored Milwaukee. And they will find, as did the commission, that there the chief of police is entirely removed from political control."

"A valuable service," states the PITTSBURGH POST-GAZETTE, "can be rendered if the conditions it has found are not merely exposed, but a follow-up program planned with the backing of the administration. There is no phase of the secondary reports on which public opinion can be more readily enlisted for reform than 'third degree' brutality."

But some women are like that, looking from picture to picture, rug to rug, one piece of furniture to another, appraising everything.

Certain others seem so taken up with the hostess that they do not look around very much.

Often the hostess herself is to blame for the critical attitude of callers for she begins to apologize for one thing after another, furniture, arrangement and lack of proper or period setting.

However the true-to-her-position hostess is so interested in her home and in giving her guests a happy time that she considers surroundings of minor importance.

She keeps things neat and clean and herself sweet in expression and manner but she can forget material things in the joy of being a hostess.

Altogether too much importance is attached at the present time to keeping an established place in society.

What a person represents as an individual is worth more than all material things, and this will be the opinion of the real friend.

Sentence Sermons

By Rev. Roy L. Smith, D. D.

THE FINAL TEST

Of courage is in giving orders to yourself.
Of education is your thirst for knowledge.
Of religion is the character it produces.
Of loyalty is our patriotism in peace time.
Of honesty is what we do when we are not being watched.
Of success is the man we become, not the machine we make.
Of friendship is the ability to forgive.

What a life! Half of it having a "good time", and the other half wishing you hadn't been a fool

Stewart Tells How Naval Disarmament Promotes Prosperity

Warship Building Non-Productive Activity, He Explains, And Such Workers Would Find Employment Elsewhere

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—A reader in a western state submits this problem:

"I find," he says, "that the average person is very curious to know how naval disarmament reduction will promote prosperity, since it will reduce requirements for labor, as well as for steel and all other supplies incidental to warship building."

Fair enough; maybe I can answer that query.

I'm glad, however, that my correspondent didn't ask what guarantee of peace there is in armament reduction, or even in complete disarmament.

For war can be waged with the most primitive weapons; perhaps with no weapons at all, except teeth, fists and fingernails. A disinclination to fight is the only insurance against fighting.

Sea battles certainly occurred long before the day of armorclads, before the day of steam, before the discovery of catapults. Indeed, early navigators probably exchanged wallops from the cockpits of skin boats and wickerwork coracles before the dawn of history.

If today's navies were scuttled to the last destroyer, there would be nothing to prevent the world's powers from engaging in maritime hostilities the following morning with their merchant fleets; armed merchant craft did lots of damage in the last war.

As previously remarked, a disinclination to fight is the only insurance against fighting.

Disarmament, to be sure, would imply such a disinclination, but quite likely it would evaporate upon the first provocation or serious clash of international interests.

Pacifically speaking, then, disarmament is a mere gesture; reduction a still less significant one.

But economically speaking, warship curtailment, down to the vanishing point if possible, is entirely a different matter.

In the strictly economic sense, every dollar that goes into a warship or is spent on its upkeep is wasted—except as the vessel may occasionally be employed on a really useful mission. This is not often or for long at a time. In general a man-o'-war is an utterly unproductive piece of machinery.

Leaving its military potentialities out of consideration, what return does it ever yield on the investment in it? Not a nickel's worth.

A warship being so obviously useless (economically), inclusive of all the steel and other materials entering into its construction, it follows that every lick of labor employed in building it and keeping it in commission is 100 per cent non-productive.

Oh, yes, it draws pay.

A force of workingmen can be paid for shoveling a hill into a valley and back again, but who benefits by the operation? The shovelers themselves might just as well be paid for doing nothing.

Besides, the wages of the worker who toils at that which is not worth doing, must be paid out of the pocket of some other worker whose product has actual value.

Thus (always speaking economically, not military) any program which reduces the number of non-productive warships it is necessary to build, thereby freeing that much labor for productive purposes, cannot but be a relief to collateral labor.

But what will become of the warship builders?

Well, momentarily their jobs will be gone. Doubtless they will have to be taken care of by emergency means for awhile. Ultimately, as they find productive employment, they will be better off for it; society will be better off, and they are a fraction of society.

Anyways, no people can conceivably profit by shoveling hills into valleys and back again—by non-productive activity for the mere sake of activity.

Chas. E. Patterson Announces Self For Council

East Side Man Enters Race For Republican Nomination On September 15th

Charles E. Patterson, a well known resident of the East Side, today announced himself as a candidate for the nomination for city council. His statement follows:

"I am a candidate for the nomination for city council and ask the support of the voters on September 15th. In this announcement I do not wish to make any prosy statement of unimportant facts. The fact that I was born in New Castle, that my parents were here for many years before me, and that I am a tax payer and property owner seem to speak for themselves.

"It is my belief that taxes are too high. However, they cannot be reduced by simply wishing them away; it takes careful, earnest and efficient management upon the part of the city council to see that the expenditures of the city are such that the tax payers money is conserved.

"In 1912 and 1913 I was a member of city council and served without compensation. The experience I had then would serve me in good stead now, I believe. If nominated and elected I can only promise to serve honestly and fearlessly, keeping ever before me that the money expended by council is the money received from the men and women of the city in the form of taxes."

Those Spending Wisely Always Suffer Least During Depressions

Governor Declares For Old Philosophy Of Thrifty Man, Blaming Stimulated Spending For Bad Times

By GEORGE H. DERN

What is a time of depression? I should say it is a time when business is dull and inactive.

We have all these forms of depression today—depression of business, depression of prices, depression of the individual and depression of the country. Business is dull, prices are down, individuals are hard up and sick at heart, and the whole country is in the dumps, wondering whether times are ever going to get good again.

What is thrift? Thrift is frugality and economical management. It means careful spending, saving part of one's income, and keeping out of debt. The thrifty person never is broke, but always has money.

The proposition, then, is that when times are hard we should all be careful in spending our money, if we have any to spend. Of course, we don't need to caution the 5,000,000 to 7,000,000 unemployed against extravagance.

From time immemorial until a few years ago it was axiomatic that the thrifty man, the man who saved his money and laid something by for a rainy day, was the man who got ahead in the world. First he had to save something, and then if he had the skill to invest his savings shrewdly, he might get rich. The wise man therefore saved his money. I think it was Poor Richard who said: "A fool and his money are soon parted." In other words, it was considered the height of folly for a man to spend his money as fast as he got it.

During the past few years a new philosophy has been preached, particularly in the United States. This philosophy tells us to spend our money as fast as we get it, because as we buy things we create employment for labor and stimulate business and thereby produce prosperity. In other words, business is made good, not by saving, but by spending.

Spending was stimulated by several devices. There was extravagant and alluring advertising which made the people want things and induced them to buy. There was high-pressure salesmanship which persuaded people to buy things they could not afford and to live beyond their means. And there was instalment buying, by means of which the people were inveigled into spending not only their present earnings but their future earnings as well. By all these devices the fool and his money were parted.

Break Into Home, Start Cellar Fire

Wilson Avenue Residents Are Aroused By Smoke, Find Fire And Open Door

Some one who forced the cellar door of the A. C. McConahy home, 1703 Wilson avenue, in the darkness of early Sunday morning nearly succeeded in setting fire to the home while the occupants were asleep.

Awakened by smoke which poured from the cellar, the McConahy's discovered a wood pile on fire in the cellar. The lights in the cellar were turned on and the cellar door open. Central and Fourth ward firemen who responded employed buckets of water to end the fire.

According to Mrs. McConahy an odor in the cellar at the time indicated that some imflammable substance had been placed on the wood pile to set it afire.

EVENT TO BE HELD AT WHITE FARM

The Pershing Club Corn Roast, which will be held at the White Farm on the New Castle-Ellwood City Road Tuesday evening, promises to be the biggest reunion of ex-service men that has been held in Lawrence County since the World War ended.

Acceptances have been received from big delegations of former war veterans from Bessemer, Enon Valley, Mt. Jackson, Pulaski, New Wilmington, Wampum, Ellwood City, Volant, and New Castle. Arrangements have been practically completed by the committee and a rousing good time is assured all who attend.

All ex-service men, regardless of the period of their service are invited to attend as guests of the Pershing Club. Admission will be free to ex-service men only. Because of the large crowd anticipated, it will not be possible to take care of any others than ex-service men.

The White Farm is situated on a high knoll just beyond the County Home and affords an excellent view of the Northern and Western portions of the county. The surroundings are beautiful, the supply of food will be ample, and enthusiasm in the event is great.

The affair will be in full swing at seven o'clock, so all ex-service men are urged to come early and avoid the rush.

Markers will be placed at the entrance to the White Farm so that those attending will have no difficulty in finding the place.

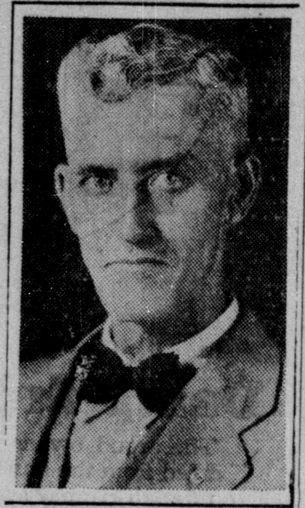
Donald Cameron Announces For Commissioner

Wampum Man To Seek Republican Nomination For Office



DONALD LEE CAMERON

Donald Lee Cameron announces his candidacy for the office of County Commissoiner, subject to the Republican primaries, Tuesday, September 15, 1931.

"I live in Wampum and was born in Lawrence County, south of New Castle borough and am fifty four years of age.

"I am firmly convinced that while the earning power of the public of Lawrence County has been greatly reduced, the taxes are too high. In this state of affairs it is necessary to keep down the need for taxes, unnecessary things should not be done, and necessary things should be done as economically as possible.

"It would be an advantage to the taxpayers, if the State Highway Department, County Commissioners, and city council would cooperate.

"I firmly believe that our county work should be done by our county tax payers, and not men of other counties that would be left a burden on Lawrence County. I am opposed to a new court house being built, during this financial depression.

"I pledge my self to oppose unnecessary expenditures. All curves in the roads of Lawrence County should be elevated to a proper radius, to safeguard people at these points.

"If nominated and elected county commissioner, I will enter the office from from any domination by or affiliation with any clique, faction or group, and will endeavor to give my honest support to the taxpayers of Lawrence County."

Your vote and influence will be greatly appreciated.

Respectfully,

Incendiary Blaze Levels Farm House

An incendiary blaze which is believed to have started simultaneously in both structures early this morning leveled the farmhouse and barn on the Bortz farm, Poland road, between Middletown and Poland, before firemen from the district could check the steady headway of the flames.

Sylvester Bortz and his son Park had left the farmhouse about a month ago. No estimate on the damage could be placed in their absence.

The house was a 4-room structure of one story, while the barn was two stories in height and contained a quantity of hay, a Ford truck and a number of farm implements and lumber.

The Bortzes, formerly of Mercer, left recently, the son going to Oil City, while the father continued to Michigan. Authorities believe the fire was caused by incendiary, since it is reported both structures, separated by about 200 feet, were found on fire at the same time.

The Poland firemen who arrived at the height of the blaze which was beyond help, confined their activities to saving several smaller structures.

Young People Meet At Second Church

Y. P. C. U. Groups, Meeting Jointly, Take "Nucleus Of Faith" As Theme

Four inspirational talks on "The Nucleus of the Christian Faith" and a delightful vocal solo featured the union program of the Young People's Christian Union societies of the First, Second and Highland U. P. churches, held last night at the Second church on County Line street.

The meeting, led by Mrs. Henry Brenneman, marked another of the joint Sunday evening services in which the three young people's groups take part during the summer months.

Built around the verse of scripture taken from John 3:16, "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son ,that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have eternal life", the different talks provided a source of inspiration to the listeners. Speakers were Mrs. Brenneman, Frank Baldwin Henry Brenneman and Kathryn Dickson.

Miss Betty Huston sang a solo entitled "Trees", with Miss Margaret Graham accompanying on the piano.

Next Sunday evening's meeting, to be held in the Highland church will be featured by an address by Dr. M. M. Rodgers, professor of Bible at Maryville college, Maryville, Tenn., now visiting here. He has spoken to the local group before.

Correct this sentence: "I had rather lose both fame and money," said the great colyumist, "Than to injure my own country."

Result Of Playground Industrial Work Is On Display For Three Days

Hour by hour during the summer playground season large gatherings of small children could be seen in each of New Castle's seven playgrounds. Their eager little fingers worked painstakingly on stuffed animals, sewing cards, crayoned dresser scarfs and wall hangings.

Day after day they met together and of their own free will entered into these projects with interest interest and gazed with pride on each finished object.

A pride well justified, all those who have seen the exhibit in a window of the Strouss-Hirshberg building will agree. In that window are the results of the summer's work. Samples of each type of work done by the children can be found in the display—stuffed giraffes, colored with crayons, elephants with bright top notches, bunnies, crayoned cushions with pretty frayed edges, dresser scarfs, placques of pretty designs for tea tiles, table runners, crepe paper, bed dolls and crepe owls.

The industrial work in the various city playgrounds was in charge of Miss Betty Mackey. Miss Mackey divided her time at grounds and was assisted by the following girls in charge of each playground— Miss Louise Davies at West Side; Miss Pearl McLure at McCleary; Miss Betty Glover at McGill; Miss Mildred Battley at Croton; Miss Mildred Sargent at Franklin; Miss Helen Lyle at Rose avenue; and Misses Claire Lindsey and Margaret Tucker at Gaston.

The children used their own ideas in each piece of work. They chose their own designs, decided what they wished to make, used the colors they liked best, and enjoyed the work to the fullest.

Beanbags and animals seemed to be very popular articles with the youngsters. The beanbags on display are the few that were rescued before the delighted owners had "played them' to shreds.

The exhibit will remain on display until Thursday.

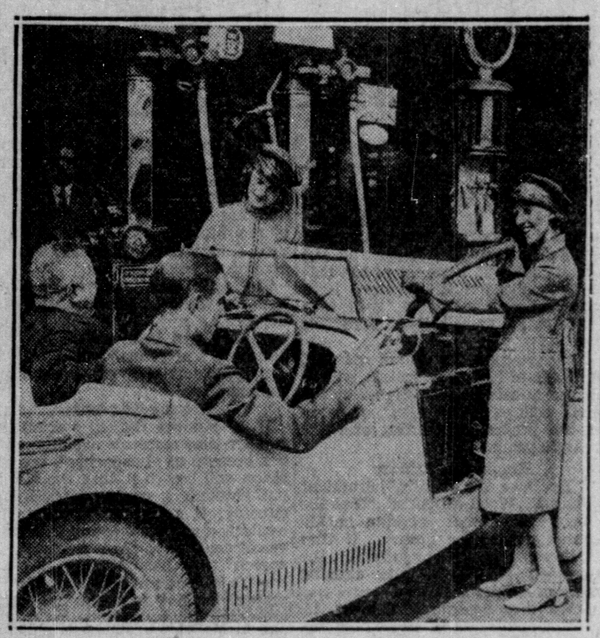
A Spiderweb of Hemp

Would it be possible, we wonder, for a twentieth century sailor to find his way around in this intricate maze of ropes, a veritable spiderweb of hemp, with which the reconditioned old Frigate Constitution, better known as Old Ironsides, is equipped? Here's the first view of the deck of the gallant old man o' war since it was revamped to the appearance of its fighting days. Note the bristling cannon ranged menacingly along the side. The Constitution was at Newport, R. I., when this picture was taken.

"Service With a Smile"



"Service with a smile" may or may not be the slogan of these attractive girls working as gasoline station attendants in London, but they're certainly giving good measure of charm with the fuel they dispense. Owners of the station, a popular one near Victoria, say the girls are more courteous and give better service than the men, being smarter and cheerier in their manner toward motorists. Look to your laurels, males!

No, This Is Not Venice

Every time a heavy rainstorm hits Logan, Pa., outside of Philadelphia the folks get out their boats. A recent storm caused six feet of water to flood the streets and thousands of dollars worth of damage was done to property and to merchandise. The force of the flood swept stocks of goods off the shelves of stores. Here's a typical scene of "Venice in Pennsylvania."

Steel Companies Protest Against Rail Rate Boost

Independent Steel Concerns Fight Against Increased Rail Rates On Iron Ore

COMMISSION HEARS J. & L. OFFICIAL

Railroads Suffering Lack Of Business And Not From Low Rates, Commission Told

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—Any increase in the rail rates on iron ore would be rank discrimination in favor of the U. S. Steel Corp.," F. A. Ogden, general freight agent of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp., of Pittsburgh told the Interstate Commerce commission today.

He said the independent iron and steel corporations are opposed to the proposal of the railroads to increase freight rates 15 per cent.

Indpendents Protest

The proposed increase on iron ore, Ogden said, would work to the advantage of lake front furnaces at Chicago, Cleveland and other lower lake ports, including those of the U. S. Steel Corp., at Gary, Cleveland and Lorain, and the Bethlehem plants at Buffalo. These companies he testified, are not protesting the increases.

With no change in the boat rate but with the upper rail haul and lower rail haul both increased, the interior furnaces such as the Jones and Laughlin will pay an increase on two rail rates and the lake front furnaces only on one.

Ogden said the proposed increase, added to the present $1.23 rate on ore from Lake Erie ports to Pittsburgh, means an increase of almost 20 cents per ton on iron ore. Since it takes about two tons of ore to produce one of metal the requested increase would add 40 cents per ton to the steel manufacturing costs of the Jones and Laughlin Furnace at Pittsburgh, he said. This is an increase over and above that would fall on the lake front furnaces.

Lack of Business

The condition confronting the railroads is not a matter of freight rates but the lack of business which is the same as that confronting all industries from the farmer up, Ogden asserted.

"To further panalize the industries for the benefit of the railroads is to divert more and more business, how little it may be, to truck and other forms of transportation and to greatly hamper all the industries" he said.

"If the industries are not helped there will be very little business for the railroads or any other means of transportation and advanced freight rates will be of no avail. It would be in the end better for all to reduce freight rates as has been done in the past in times of depression.'

Heavy Commodities

Ogden said articles of iron and steel manufacture were among the heaviest loading commodities transported by the railroads and this traffic under the present rates produces large car mile revenue. Iron and steel articles afford the railroads desirable traffic as the susceptibility to damage in transit is practicably negligible.

J. V. McMohan, traffic manager of the Youngstown Chamber of Commerce said his organization was opposed to any rate increase, "particularly because industries in the Youngstown district are unable in many instances to meet the competition of other districts, especially those located on the Ohio River system and the Great Lakes.

He said the present charges paid by the industries in his district on their in-bound raw materials and also on their out-bound products destined to territories on or adjacent to the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers or the Great Lakes, are such as to make it almost impossible for the steel industries in the district to meet the competition of similar industries located on the rivers or on the Great Lakes.

Protest Increases

"Any increase in the present freight rates and charges would further aggravate this situation," he said, "and, in our opinion, would increase the cost of production in the Youngstown district by greater amounts than competitors' plants located on the rivers and Great Lakes because the increase would not apply to the water transportation which they enjoy.

'Such increase unquestionably result in our losing more business to those competitors who use water transportation to a large extent. This would not only seriously affect industries in the Youngstown district but will affect the railroads which serve that district."

THE PARENT PROBLEM

Developing Activities Are Noticed

Notes On Early Motor Learning Of Infant Recorded

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

In 1915 I published a paper in the American Journal of Psychology entitled "Grasping, Reaching and Handling", based on extensive notes I had recorded on the early motor learning of my eldest child during his development. If you observe your baby carefully you will, no doubt, perceive many phenomena I shall describe though, of course, your child may be much smarter than the child I studied.

A baby's early reaching is inward toward his chest, the right hand moving leftward and the left one moving rightward, first within narrow range, then gradually wider and wider.

On the 94th day the child observed definitely reached with his left hand for the rattle held before him and he focused his eyes on it as he reached.

On the 104th day he grasped an object a few inches above his chest as he lay on his back. Even on the 109th day his attempts to get either hand a few inches across the median line of his body were attended by much effort and not much success.

On the 260th day (9 months) when a bracelet was hung on his ear he reached vainly for it with the hand of the opposite side. Forty days later ,when a small strip of cloth was put on his head so that it hung down between his eyes, he failed to get it after repeated trials. Nevertheless, he could readily seize objects with the sweep of either hand, as long as a rolling movement of the wrist outward was not required. . .

During the first year the wrist was rarely turned, palms virtually never seen upward except when his hands were above or beside his head while sleeping. He was six months old before he clearly turned his palm, doing so to seize a basin after one unsuccessful trial. Certainly the free rolling of the wrist is not learned in the first few months.

You have heard the expression, "The baby reaching for the moon". Well, he does make great errors at first in judging distances. On the 163d day the child I carefully observed seemed to grasp at something in a window five feet away. But he learned rapidly, since four days later, when tested, he made errors of not more than twelve inches.

He discovered his feet on the 141st day and, upon seizing the left foot by both hands, the pleasure from this new experience made him extend the foot quickly and he lost hold.

* * *

The apparent early pleasure from many movements and the delight from new experiences gained through the ears and eyes and grasp and touch and muscular tension the child increases his eagerness for new experiences and becomes a ceaseless investigator, continually learning added skills and information. His learning development is so gradual, however, that most of it merely happens right before our eyes without our knowing of it. But anyone who carefully observes the infant's mode of learning cannot help but be impressed by his marvelous achievements even over a period of a few months. Nothing more fascinating to a parent than to make such observations, since the child then appears more wonderful and we grow toward him more considerate, sympathetic and understanding.

The Flower Parade

SOWING PANSY SEEDS

The middle of August is generally considered the best time to sow pansy seeds. Sowing them at this period allows time to transplant them, and enables the plants to become firmly established before winter, the horticulturists of the bureau of plant industry advise.

Sow pansy seed in rich, loose soil, preferably soil which has been enriched with manure or other fertilizer some time before. They may be sown in pans or shallow boxes or in the garden. Sow them in rows about three inches apart at a depth of 1-16 of an inch. Cover the seeds lightly, but firmly, and water with a fine spray.

After the seeds are sown, they should be kept shaded and should not be allowed to dry out. It is advisable to water them in the morning of clear days. Do not overwater them, however, or a 'dampening-off" fungus may develop.

Pansy seeds germinate eight to ten days after seeding under ordinarily favorable circumstances. As soon as the plants are big enough to handle they should be transplanted to a box or to another bed. They should be placed in rich, loamy soil and after transplanting should be kept shaded until they are once more established. Pinching off long growth will produce bushier plants. About 10 weeks after the seeds are sown the plants should be ready for final transplanting.

For the winter cover the pansies with a mulch of straw or manure to protect them from winter killing. Where there is plenty of snow, this will prove adequate covering.

With this care pansies should be ready to bloom early the following spring.

Star Lore

THAT PART OF A LOW WHERE A SUMMER THUNDER SHOWER STARTS

By Arthur DeV. Carpenter

Thunder showers in summer usually occur in the southern quadrants (quarters) of a low, for there is where the greater part of the moisture of a low is. A small convectional (bulging upward) current forms over some especially hot ground of a summer afternoon causing the heat expanded air lying over it to ascend. This moisture laden air on reaching higher altitudes cools by expansion at the rate of 1.6 degrees for every 300 feet of ascent. Of course this also cools the water vapor with which it is laden until it reaches the dew point and becomes visible as cloud. Thus thunder clouds (commulus) form on a late summer afternoon.

Social Readjustment And Library Emphasis Feature College Plan

Students To Be Taught How To Live Well At Institution Where Educational Program Will Center Around Book Shelves

By Central Press

COLUMBIA, Mo., Aug. 17.—Abandonment of many of the conventional features of college education, to be replaced by a system under which the librarian is to become the highest ranking member of the faculty and "75 per cent of the value" of college is to be gained from non-academic activities, will take place at Stephens College here this fall.

This sweeping revision of accepted methods of higher education will be placed in effect in September by the girls' college as the result of a research program extending over the past 10 years.

Emphasize Library

"We have the feeling," President James M. Wood explained, "that the whole educational program should center around the library. If that is the case, then in our judgment the librarian should be the ranking member of the faculty.

"We are going to dignify the classroom teacher by abolishing the office of the dean of faculty and getting a man trained in the technique of administration. He will be a kind of 'super-secretary' and his work will be chiefly clerical."

Along with the abolishment of the time-honored college office of dean will be the disappearance, as well, at Stephens College this fall, of "departments" and their heads, a system universally used in American colleges. In the place of the many academic departments, such as in Latin, English, mathematics, sociology, etc., there will be simply four "divisions".

"Social Readjustment"

These will be the divisions of science, humanities, social studies and skills, techniques and vocations. In addition there will be a fifth division—the most revolutionary change of the entire program, which will be strictly non-academic and will be known as the "division of social readjustment".

In a word, the purpose of the "social readjustment" division will be to teach the student how to live well. Citing an example of how this new part of college education would operate, President Wood continued:

"It is true that a very large part of college students have an inferiority complex because they have no definite 'technique'—or method—of carrying on a conversation or even of reciting in class. It is to solve such situations as this that the new division is being created."

The social readjustment division, however, will consider classroom difficulties as only a minor part of its work. It will have as its job the discovery and remedying of all the little problems of living confronting students.

Helping Students

If a student dances awkwardly, and for that reason is avoiding parties because of "headaches", the division will see to it that the girl is put through a course of ballroom dancing; if a girl is found to be hesitant and uninteresting in a conversational way, then a course in speech will be outlined; if she doesn't know how to buy her clothes properly, or how to match her dresses, gloves, hats and suits, as to design or color, there will be remedial courses in the clothing department prescribed for her.

Seventy-five per cent of the value of college education, President Wood asserted, should be gained in the solving of these and similar problems—in the eradication of difficulties to make a fuller life possible in college as well as after graduation.

This emphasis on social readjustment, President Wood hastens to explain, in no way means that Stephens College is going to lower its academic standards. It simply means, he believes, that educators have too long overlooked the "extra-curricular" side of college life—the part outside of the classroom, and having allowed it to run a haphazard course.

Librarian's Task

The task of the librarian, who also will be known as "dean of instruction", but will be strictly a member of the teaching staff and not an administrator, will be to develop a system "that will leave the fewest possible number of books on the library stacks and will promote the utmost freedom in the use of books by the faculty and students.

"He will build libraries for each of the five divisions, for the individual teacher and her class, and will keep the classroom libraries filled with books needed to handle topics of the day. He will develop libraries for recreational reading in the living rooms of each dormitory. He will also work out personal libraries for students in their rooms so that the student is free to have in her room the books she wants, whether she reads them or not. In other words, he is to teach the students to live with books."

Dr. B. Lamar Johnson of the University of Minnesota has been named to fill the position of "librarian and dean of instruction."

Why Fruit Changes Its Color, Taste

What Happens Inside A Sour Apple To Make It Sweet?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The process of ripening fruit is going on now in the orchards all over the land—and the fruit is being ripened for your benefit this fall. It may be worth while to bear a hot day or two when you realize the changes that are taking place.

The food we put into our mouths has in nearly all instances undergone many changes from its original state. Cooking, of course, is the most familiar of these. The changes that take place during cooking are very interesting—partly chemical and partly physical—and will form the subject of a subsequent article. Canning also induces some changes in the product. And, finally, is the subject we are interested in today—the ripening of fruits and vegetables.

What happens inside between the time it is a sour apple and a ripe apple? Well, one of them is very evident from the terms you use. Sourness means acidity. A sour apple has more acid in it than a ripe apple. There is a marked decrease in the acid content of all fruit during the ripening process.

Another chemical change is that during ripening the starch content is changed to sugar. Starch and Sugar are both forms of carbohydrate and in the process of human digestion all starches are converted into sugar. Iodine is the substance used to test starch, and if you will take an unripe apple and cut it across and touch it with a weak iodine solution you will find that almost the entire surface turns purple, which is the test reaction for starch. Wait a month and try it on another apple from the same tree and there will be only a thin ring of purple around the edge. Then try a ripe apple and the purpie reaction will be very slight or hardly noticeable.

Bananas show the same phenomenon even more noticeably, but peaches seldom have any starch, although the sugar content increases markedly as they ripen.

Another feature of ripening pleasant to our taste and palate is the increase of esters. Esters are the ethereal substances that give the fruit its flavor and smell. They are also the substances which give the wines and brandies their bouquet, and they continue to increase the more the wine and brandy is aged. Their increase is the only thing that makes an old wine better than a new one.

These changes are possibly initiated by digestive enzymes inside the fruit, possibly by the sun's action alone.

The cellulose also decreases as the fruit ripens. The cellulose is the hard, stringy substance of the fruit It is what makes the unripe fruit hard and causes the gripes that come from eating sour apples. The high acid content of unripe fruit probably also causes some of the symptoms of green apple eating. The cellulose content of unripe fruit is also known in the well-known house hold rule that unripe fruit makes a firmer jelly.

Akron Couple Put Over Clever Stunt Until Police Act

Have Four Small Girls Selling Artificial Butterflies

Until stopped late Saturday after noon by Officer Willis McMullen an Akron couple, who were evidently looking for easy money, put over a clever but old racket on the people of this city, who were inclined to be in sympathy with the unfortunate.

They had four little girls about ten years of age, cleanly but poorly dressed, who went into places of business and about the streets, with boxes filled with artificial butterflies. They would approach the people, stating that their father was out of work or that their parents were dead, and made a plea to sell the butterflies for ten cents. Many people gave them money and did not take the butterflies.

Officer McMullen entered in the scene, he found that the man and woman were supervising the efforts of these youthful saleswomen and ordered them into the police station. Here the man and woman gave the names of Cora Kane and Norman Randolph and claimed they and the girls were from Akron, O.

They were ordered out of town by Lieutenant of Police Peter Hillers and warned as to what they might expect, if they returned again. They had collected quite an amount of money when stopped and ordered from the city.

Man Finds Long Lost Bank Roll

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Aug. 17.—Michael Manjak, 1669 Henrici street, Ambridge laid claims today to being the happiest man in the county.

Manjak was packing his household belongings preparatory to moving when under a davenport cushion he found $460 in bills, which he lost six years ago.

Manjak's first act, it is said, was to pay his delinquent taxes and settle up several other outstanding bills that have been incurred since more prosperous days were enjoyed.

LOOKING BACK

IN NEW CASTLE

One thing that the old timers of the city can remember very distinctly, but which it is hard for the younger generations to appreciate, is the wonderful facilities afforded to get in and out of the city on the wonderful improved roads of the present day. Fifteen years ago the average trip of 100 or 200 miles that is often possible these days on account of the fine roads and the automobiles obtainable now, in a few hours time, would be a matter of considerable thought and effort on the part of the participants. Approximately 20 or 25 years ago the improved highways were few and far between and automobiles were almost as scarce and for that reason there would be but few people who had the opportunity of taking trips that are an every day pastime with many people today. Going back a little farther in time, the horse and buggy were the mode of transportation and while it was a slower process than by automobile, both on account of the unimproved roads and the fact that horses were less speedy than the automobile, it might be termed much safer. The change from the horse to the automobile has caused quite a change in the business life of the community as well as speeded up transportation, for 30 years ago there were numerous livery stables, harness shops, feed stores, horseshoe establishments and kindred types of business in the city. Today these types of business with the exception of the feed stores are so scarce that they are hard to find. In their place there are garages, gasoline service stations and allied businesses. The question now is, what will be the corresponding change in the community in the next 30 years.

PRESERVE BELASCO WORKS

(International News Service)

NEW YORK.— Play producing methods used by the late David Belasco during his long career in the theatrical world have been removed to the New York public library. There they are preserved in a section devoted entirely to the producer's accomplishments. The group includes scrapbooks, photographs, press clipping volumes, and books on drama and other works compiled by the famous theatrical figure since 1895. All are available to students of playwriting, acting or prducing, and to the public as well.

MY NEW YORK

BY JAMES ASWELL

Central Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 17—Those incredibly svelte and gleaming limousines, those chromium-plated chariots of Croesus which prowl Park avenue and Fifth! Where did so many people get the money to buy them?—I used to asked myself, gnashing teeth in envy.

I am relieved, having discovered quite a few of the shiniest and swankiest Rolls-Royces which decorate the town are sported—though not supported—by simple small-towners like myself.

It is now possible to rent a Rolls for the day—liveried chauffeur and all—for less than a fifteen-and-five taxi would pile up on the meter with the same amount of touring.

Mr. Ralph Martin and his daughter preside over the only Rolls-Royce renting agency in the world, on Park avenue. He is a genial gentleman who dresses in careless comfort and is not a bit taken aback by the society plutocrats who enter his establishment (it may be a bit sheepishly.)

Mr. Martin doubts that people often rent Rollses just for the impression the cars make on their friends. His daughter on the other hand, is sure she can tell whether a prospective patron "is used to cars and things" by the tone used over the wire."

There are 26 cars now. He started with one three years ago. When in doubt over the trustworthiness of a patron, the Social Register is a good arbiter.

Mr. Russell ('Night") Ryder the broker who got into serious trouble not long ago for flinging millions of his clients' money about Broadway, was a steady customer of the Martins. He had his favorite Rolls for three years—and, Mr. Martin insists was "a nice fellow who always paid his debts here."

Miss Martin recalls that Marion Davies, Dolores del Rio and Peggy Joyce have on occasions, rented cars through her. Business men rent them constantly for theatre parties and to ride between country homes, yachts and offices. By the month, the price is $700 plus expenses. The longest trip ever made in one of the Martin Rollses was from New York to San Francisco.

An imposter claiming to be Floyd Gibbons once tried to get a Rolls for nothing. Mr. Martin suspicious of the look of the patch over the visitor's left eye, turned him down.

August Reminder Winter Approaching

Hot as the weather may be, there is always something in August reminiscent of winter. The days may be sultry, but the evenings bring a touch of coolness. Most of the birds are silent; it is the moulting season, not a social time with them. A little later we shall hear the song sparrow again, and the autumn notes of the bluebird will awake a touch of regret for the vanishing summer.

To most persons the change will bring a fresh realization to the rapid passage of the seasons. Winter may come a little early or linger a little late. Spring may seem unduly brief. But summer does not vary much in duration. Three months at most and it is over. And no matter how high the thermometer has ranged we are sorry to see it go.

Respirator Keeps Girl Alive For More Than Hour

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—An 18-year-old girl, who was stricken with infantile paralysis more than a year ago, has been in a respirator machine at the Massachusetts General Hospital practically ever since, it was learned at the hospital today.

Physicians said her lower body was partially paralyzed and she could only move her legs slightly, but because her diaphragm functioned nearly normally it was possible to remove the machine for several hours each day, usually at meal times.

They hoped that her lungs would eventually become sufficiently strengthened to allow permanent removal of the machine.

Junction Repeats Former Victory

Local Swimmers Unable To Improve Against Visitors—Better Competition Evidenced

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 17—Although not making much headway on paper, the VanGorder's swimmers made a return match here with Junction Park Saturday more interesting than previously had. The visitors decisily copped the affair but had some hard fought races to win.

Hix Junction was the meets high scorer with 12 points, having taken a first place in fancy diving, and a first and two third place in the swimming events. The locals fared much better in fancy diving this time—Hubert Fitzgerald taking second and Eddie Hampton third. Fitzgerald and Hix were compelled to take an extra dive to break a deadlock for first place at the close of the contest. Hix made the better dive and was awarded first place.

The local swimmers made a better bid for honors this time—giving a hard battle in the relay race and the dashes. Robuck took the only first place for Ellwood again when he was triumphant in the underwater swim. Fitzgerald copped a third place in the 50 yard and 25 yard free style races: Hampton took a third in the plunge: Dudick a third in the underwater swim: and Kimes a third in the back stroke.

In the swimming events the locals were represented by Hubert Fitzgerald, Ken Zeigler, Ed and Chuck McCloskey, Eddie Hampton, Johnny Wilson, Bud Kimes, Mike Dudick and Fred Robuck. Fitzgerald, Hampton, Wilson and Robuck were entered in the fancy diving contest.

The locals will have a return match with Aliquippa in the latter part of this week it is believed. On Saturday the New Castle mermen will be the attraction here.

Fans To Witness Six Bouts Tonight

Donnelli Battles Gray And Arnold Exchanges Punches With Paul Kropac In Two Of Six Battles At Bowl; First Bout To Start At Nine O'clock, D. S.; Chip To Referee

Bill Donnelli and Homer Gray, 163 pound glove-hurlers tonight will settle the question as to "Who's Who" when they meet in a four round tilt at the Castle bowl. They've been arguing long and loud and when nine o'clock fast time arrives the fans can expect some action. But the Donnelli-Gray tilt isn't the only scrap on the card: no, siree, five others having been arranged. The commission has named George Chip referee of the bouts tonight.

There has not only been considerable arguing between Donnelli and Gray but also between the fans and several sizable bets, have been recorded in various parts of the city. The wagers have been made at even money and it is a cinch that when they start punching, there'll be no stalling.

Gray has been going high, wide and fancy in his encounters here but during his two trips to the ring Donnelli has demonstrated that he's a bearish sort of chap who doesn't let a glove tickle on the chin stop his aggressiveness or make him become faint-hearted. It's going to be a hard fight.

The Donnelli-Gray scrap won't have a thing on the Tommy Arnold-Paul Kropac scrap. Kropac is coming from Akron to determine if he can stop the southpaw. Arnold lost the last time out but only after he had staged a good scrap. Kropac is young, tough and a stiff puncher.

Clyde Merriner of Akron will meet Schkickey Ambrose of Warren. Manager Charles Gruver of Akron says Merriner is good and Mickey Forkins a former New Castle fighter says the same thing about Ambrose. This being the case the 162 pounder ought to satisfy the fans.

Mangine Meets Eck

Ray Ritchie fought a good heady fight with Joe Boldin and will meet Eddie Elridge of Akron tonight. On paper it looks as though Ritchie has a shade. While he hasn't fought often he has been schooled and appears in action as though he has gone to the wars often. They weigh 122.

Billy Mido will take on Young Scotty of Akron at 120 pounds. Scotty formerly lived in the vicinity of Pulaski according to reports here and he is to have the support of those fans when he clashes with Mido. Mido fought Jackie Ruffner a draw at the last show.

Eddie Eck of Akron will substitute for Willie Stribling against Vito Mangine at 135 pounds. Stribling has a wrenched leg and it was decided to remove him from the card. Eck has fought several times and is expected to give the Grant street battler a hot skirmish.

The doors will open at 7:30 p. m. d. s. to accommodate the big crowd as the prices have been cut to 50, 75 and one dollar. The first of the six bouts will start at 9 p. m. d. s. Bebe Biondi will be the deputy commissioner in charge.

Follow Through With Your Hands Is Grove Advice

By ROY GROVE

NUMBER 57

Next to watching the ball when hit and keeping the weight on the left foot instead of the right at point of contact, one must remember to get the hands, the right and left, out after the hole on the finish of the long iron shot.

Note the position of the hand at (A) and the left hand at (B) when getting through with the midiron.

The average golfer plays the long iron too far away from him, especially the long shots.

He has a notion that the harder the ball is hit the further he must stand away.

This is all wrong, and hampers the correct pivot for the down stroke.

When Clarence Gamber, the longest driver in golf, wants an exceptionally long-hit ball, he stands with his feet a bit closer together.

This enables him to get more pivot to the backswing and more force for the clubhead.

To stand with the feet further apart keeps the player from getting a comfortable backswing and consequently he finds himself lunging into the ball.

In lunging he makes an effort to reach the ball and finds he has cut the shot for a long slice.

Get a comfortable backswing, well pivoted, and then let the iron come into the ball and on through at the hole.

Mushball Notes

Oak A. C. mushball team topped the Gordon A. C. 9 to 7 in a mushball game at Lehigh Field. Nimmo on the hill for the Oak A. C. allowed ten hits but kept them scattered. Llewellyn was touched for nine hits, but Jack fanned eleven men. It was a tight fast game.

The Lockley team of the Class A mushball league won the first game of a double bill from the Cables of Ellwood City 13 to 3 at Lehigh Field with Rodgers pitching and then turned around and topped the Ellwoodians team again with Mauri pitching 10 to 0. Mauri allowed the Cables but three hits. Rodgers gave six hits in the first game. Mauri pounded out two homers in the second game and E. Lockley had one, so did Dando.

The Rose Avenue mushball team defeated the Pump Station team in a game at Castle Field by a score of 12 to 5. Only recently the Rose Avenue team defeated the West Side Stars in a double bill by scores of 14 to 2 and 15 to 5. On Wednesday the Rose Avenue team plays the West Side team at Scotland Lane field.

The postponed church league mushball game between the Epworth M. E. church team and Trinity Episcopals will be played tonight at Taggart field at 6:30 o'clock, according to an announcement today.

Church League Managers Note

All managers of the New Castle Church Mushball teams are asked to turn in their scoresheets to the Y. M. C. A. or let McNichols, know how the league standing is up until today. There has not been an accurate standing of the league this second half. All managers are asked to get in touch with McNichols at once.

The protested Italian M. E. and First Christians game in the first half will remain as ruled by the umpire, and this gives the First Christians the first-half title.

Cards-Athletics Pennant Winners

Races In Both Leagues Over As Far As Pennants Are Concerned

MERRY FIGHTS ON FOR SECOND MONEY

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK Aug. 17—While Manager Gabby Street refuses to admit that the St. Louis Cardinals have practically clinched another national league pennant and Connie Mack is almost equally reluctant to acknowledge that the Athletics are "in" not even an Einstein could discover much of a mathematical chance this morning for any other club to horn in on the world series party which gets under way six weeks from tomorrow.

The two leaders played the best ball in their respective leagues during the past seven days. The Cards winning five out of six games and the A's copping four out of five. The Mackmen gained a full game on Washington, and St. Louis picked up an additional game and a half over the Giants and Cubs.

Athletics About In

If the A's continue their present .723 pace, winding up the season with 111 victories, a single defeat in Washington's remaining 42 games would put the Senators out of the running. Even if the Nats play .750 ball from now on, about the most that could be expected of them, the A's would be able to win out by playing .500 ball.

Should Washington continue its present .625 gait, Philadelphia could lose 26 of its 42 remaining games and still be first to the wire.

Nothing short of a smallpox epidemic can stop the Cardinals sporting a 9-1-2 game lead over New York and Chicago. If the Red Birds continue at their present .640 clip finishing with 99 victories, the Giants would have to chalk up 38 wins in their remaining 43 games to nose them out. The Cubs face an equally tough proposition.

On the other hand, should New York and Chicago fail to accelerate their present .559 pace and wind up the schedule with 86 victories the Cardinals could remain in front by copping only 14 of their 40 remaining starts.

YANKEES-WEST SIDE

Tonight on the Franklin field the Young Yankees will meet the West Side mushball team. On Wednesday the Yankees will meet the Williams All Stars.

Orlando made a desperate attempt to catch the fly backwards but failed. Grasser scored on the play, giving the Shenango team a 7-6 verdict.

Pitching Duel

The contest was a pitching duel from start to finish. Frank "Jewie" Coen was on the rubber for the Scarazzos while Paul McCullough, former Washington American league hurler took the mound for the Shenango team. Coen hurled masterful ball throughout yielding but seven scattered hits while McCullough was found for 10 hits. Coen hurled consistent ball throughout but several tough breaks lost the tilt for him.

The Shenango team started on the scoring column in the opening frame by scoring two runs. In the fourth frame the Scarazzos scored four runs. Byak singled. Grinnen was safe on a fielder's choice but Byak was out on the play. Fahey was safe when Sank McCullough juggled the ball. Palus filled the bags when he was walked. Calipetri hit a timely double to deep left field scoring all three men.

Coen sacrificed advanced Calipetri to third. Calipetri scored when J. Soho missed Genock's grounder. In the fifth and sixth innings the Scarazzos managed to score two more runs.

Shenango Ties Score

The Shenango team made a strong comeback in the ninth inning to deadlock the count. Glasser first man-up was out Coen to Fahey. Scaglione connected for his second bingle of the game through third base. W. Soho batting for Rech struck out . J. Soho was hit by a pitched ball. Fruitt hit a single to right field scoring Scaglione. Russo poled out another single in right, scoring J. Soho and deadlocking the score.

S. McCullough was out when he flied to Earl in left field. In the tenth it appeared as though the Scarazzos would make a comeback when George Byak started the extra inning with a terrific double to the left field fence. He remained on base as Grinnen was out Fruitt to Rech, Fahey grounded out P. McCullough to Rech and Palus flied out to Glasser. The final score was 7-6.

The contest proved one of most thrilling one of the season at Centennial field. The 2,000 or more followers of both teams were on their heels in more than one instance. Earl made a spectacular catch of Glasser's fly to the left field corner in the sixth. Coen's catch of Fruitt's fly bunt also was spectacular as was Grinnen's shot string catch of P. McCullough hit to right in the ninth.

For the Shenango Pottery team the playing of Charley Scaglione was connected for three hits one of which proved the one that won the contest for the Shenango team featured. Fruitt also did well at bat hitting safely twice. For the Scarazzos the hitting of George Byak, Calipetri, Fahey and Earl was outstanding.

By virtue of the win the Shenango team is tied for first place honors in the Lawrence County league.

South Side Team Beats Butler, 4-2

South Side Board Of Trade Team Wins Fifth Victory Of Season

Despite a bad start the South Side Board of Trade tennis team pulled a victory out of the fire on Sunday afternoon on the Butler avenue courts when it defeated the Butler avenue racqueteers by a 4-2 count. The victory was the fifth of the season for the South Siders.

The Board of Trade team played the same brand of tennis that has carried it through victorious over some of the best tennis aggregations in the city. In the first set Harold Harris of the South Side team showed good form in defeating J. Mears by scores of 6-2 and 6-2. Tommy Jones of the Butler avenue team wrapped a surprise defeat on the neck of Chester Rowe in the second match of the day in straight sets. The scores were 6-1 and 7-5.

Morrow proved a bit too good for Mike Kulich of the South Side team in the third encounter of the afternoon. The scores were 6-1 and 6-0. The best match on the card was the Edward Seneski-Howard Sage battle. Sage took the first set 6-4. Seneski easily took the second set, 6-0.

In the third set, with the score 5-2 in favor of Sage and the score 40-5 in the sixth game of the set, Seneski made a Frank Merriwell finish by winning that game and the set, 7-5. This set proved the best of the afternoon.

In the doubles Harold Harris and Chester Rowe of the Board of Trade team trounced J. Mears and Morrow in straight sets, 6-4 and 6-2. Mike Kulich and Ed. Seneski of the South Side team won the last doubles match, which won for the South Side team. Kulich and Seneski beat Jones and Sage in straight sets, 6-3 and 7-5.

To date the South Side team is undefeated in tennis circles. In six matches the Board of Trade team has won five and has been tied once. The New Castle Racqueteers tied the Traders in the only upset to mar the splendid record piled up by this team.

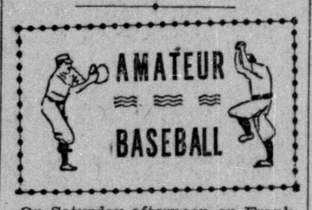
The Board of Trade team has defeated the New Castle Racqueteers twice, the Green Hills team twice and the Butler Avenue Racqueteers yesterday.

On next Saturday afternoon on the board of Trade courts the Traders will step out of their class when they meet the New Wilmington Tennis Club. The first set starts at one o'clock.

Mahoning Plays Slovaks Tonight

One of the biggest crowds of the season is anticipated tonight on the E. and A. grounds when the Mahoning A. A. nine meets the Slovaks for the right to meet the West Side Tigers for the independent title of the city.

The Slovaks will probably use A. Mehalic or Tempolio with Adams behind the plate. F. Domenick or Cardella will likely hurl for the Mahoning aggregation. Miron will catch. Plenty of rivalry exists between these two teams and for this reason one of the best games of the season is expected to be played when these two nines battle.



On Saturday afternoon on Franklin field the Pearson Sluggers won a 17-13 verdict over the P. and B. Hitters. The game proved fast.

The score by innings:

Pearson .. ..233 210 402—17
P. and B. .....400 303 030—13

Batteries—Pearson, N. Cagnetti and T. Morella; P. and B. Capp and DeGenaro.

SPYING ON SPORTS

BY WILLIAM RITT

The outstanding style in sports for late summer is the comeback, custom-tailored with ambition and, of course, neatly trimmed with a yen for a fatter bank account.

With that eminent professional hockey impresario, Benny Leonard and Jack Dempsey, Reno's premier pugilistic maestro, plotting returns to the war, the ring is seeing the most important emigration from the ranks of has beens than has occurred in any one month previously.

Now rumor flits that Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the Georgia gentleman who built one of the finest edifices to be seen in the record books, a string of great marks that towers well above even the Empire State building is anxious to return to the glove.

But not as a player. Ty knows that those days are gone forever. The story is that the one-time Terror of the Tigers is considering a juicy offering to manage one of the big league clubs next season.

It doesn't take a Sherlock Holmes to determine that the club must be the Cincinnati Reds. There, of course, is also the possibility that Cobb may succeed Bucky Harris as boss of his old team, but Detroit has seen Cobb as a manager before and the picture wasn't so hot.

The Reds are in the doldrums from which even so capable a pilot as Dan Howley cannot raise them. The story goes that Cobb may buy into the unnamed club, which would seem to fit the Cincinnati setup since the Reds are not one of the wealthiest clubs in the big leagues by a long shot.

The only sour note in the story is the part about salary. The report places the figure at $50,000 and a cut in the profits, if any. That sum doesn't sound at all like Cincinnati, Detroit or most other big league organizations. The depression is still on, you know, and Cobb has yet to prove he is half as good a manager as he was a player.

But baseball will be glad to see Cobb come back as a manager or owner. He was one of its most colorful figures.

This department thinks Cobb deserves another chance as manager. He succeded the late Hughie Jennings in 1920 when the Tigers were a seventh place aggregation and by 1923 had raised them to second place.. He might have won a pennant that year if the first great Yankee ball club had not been on the scene at the time.

That was the Tiger's greatest drive under Cobb. The next season they began to slide and when they wound up sixth in 1926 he resigned.

In Philadelphia there's a rumor the fans are going to shoot the Athletics, including Connie Mack, and stuff them in glass museum cases so they'll stay the same.

Market Declines As Bears Stage Rally

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—A good portion of the price grains scored in the last few days of last week was swept away this morning as a deluge of selling made its way to the stock market. It was said in Wall Street that the rally was largely at the expense of the shorts and that therefore the position of the market had been weakened somewhat by the rebound. United States Steel was under pressure and fell off to 90½, for a loss of 2½ points, while General Motors, Union Carbide and Westinghouse and others of last week's best ground-gainers were off 1 to 3 points. Auburn Auto broke under 140 for a loss of 9 points.

New York Central led the reaction in the Rails and fell off 3¼ points to 71½. Neither the Rails nor the Utilities were very heavily sold, and price changes in the latter group were comparatively small. All sections of the list quieted down after the early accumulation of selling orders had been absorbed and moderate rallies were in evidence near the noon period. The commodity markets were also inclined to lower price levels, with Cotton down about 18 points. Call money was unchanged at 1½ per cent.

Mrs. Olive Kellner Speaks To Crowd

Mrs. Olive Kellner held a large crowd in rapt attention Sunday evening in the gospel tent at the corner of Mill and Friendship streets, when she preached on "The Second Coming of Christ."

Mrs. Kellner took as her text Matthew 24:27, "For as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west; so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be.

This text depicts three things: the territory to be affected by the coming of Christ will be vast, extending from the east to the west and covering all nations; the coming will take place as quickly as lightning flashes, as the scripture says, in a moment, the twinkling of an eye; the text of this verse also speaks of the storm and calamity that will follow, as the lightning ushers in a storm, so at the coming of Christ, great tribulation will begin, such as the world has never before known

Misses Clara Bender and Rose Webber offered pleasing vocal numbers.

At the morning services in the First Pentecostal church Florence Brisbin and Ruth Bender, missionaries returned from Africa, gave short sketches of their work in that country.

NEW BULLET PROOF GLASS

(International News Service)

BERLIN—Bullet-proof glass, impervious to rifle fire even at close range, has been perfected by Walter Roosen and has successfully passed thorough tests at the experimental station for firearms here. Regulation military rifle bullets fired at short range failed even to splinter this remarkable glass which is but slightly over a quarter of an inch thick and as transparent as ordinary window paning. Roosen has started producing this glass on a fairly large scale, with a view to selling it to banks and other institutions where the danger of a hold-up is ever at hand.

Cuban Revolt Due to Depression Or Dissatisfaction with Machado?

* * * * * * * * *

While Government Opposition Blames "Tyrannical" Rule of Machado and Questions Legality of His Presidency, American Observers Lay Responsibility on Country's Present Poverty

The latest outbreak of revolution in Cuba, in which several were killed, a score wounded and seventeen of the most prominent men in the country placed under arrest, is the culmination of a series of disorders that began last October when the Government suspended Constitutional guarantees, putting the country under a form of martial law. Although the opposition puts the responsibility for the trouble on the shoulders of President Machado, charging that as he "made-over" the Constitution to give himself a six-year term in office, his presidency is illegal, American observers of Cuban affairs declare that the decline of sugar prices to a point below the cost of production is the chief cause of the trouble. Among the seventeen arrested in the latest outbreak are two brothers and a son of General and former President Mario Menocal, who, it is charged, is the prime instigator of the anti-government plotting.

Weather Diary Of Century Ago Tells Odd Facts

(International News Service)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 17.—For a matter of forty-three years from January 1, 1800, to December 21, 1842, Joe Andrews of Bethany, kept a daily record of weather conditions at his farm. Now, as a result of discovery of his documents it has been determined that weather "in the good old days" was not so very different from the New England weather of today.

For in the period covering almost the first half of last century the Andrews figures disclose that snow in this area averaged 34.5 inches per season as against 39.3 inches averaged from 1872 to 1930.

Andrews also kept for fifty years "an account of the blowing of apple trees," from which it is now determined that the average date of such display was May 13. The average now is about a week earlier for such trees.

In the matter of snowfall, the Andrews record shows that the winter of 1812 brought 79 inches and the winter of 1805 81 inches. In modern times the winter of 1915 had 76 inches. In the 1800's there were eleven winters when only a little over a foot of snow was recorded, and many other years when only two or three feet fell.

Andrews lived through the famous "cold summer" of 1816 when frost came every month, and all crops were ruined throughout New England. Andrews discovered "a black spot on the sun," and declared "this is supposed to be the reason for our state of weather."

Sun spots have been accurately placed since then. Andrews kept a record of its movement by using "a peace of smoked glass," and found it traveled from the "east to the west" of the sun all summer long, and finally disappeared. Thern normal weather returned and crops were successful.

The Andrews record is now in possession of Blackstone Memorial library at Branford, a suburb.

Must Choose Between Husband And Parents

The girl, still a student in Munhall high school, eloped to Dravosburg last July 30, with Mike Czaplinski, West Homestead.

Ths husband has brought suit to secure her return claiming his wife's parents have kept her at their home since the marriage. While the parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Cutnell, said they would oppose any effort on the part of Czaplinski to reclaim his bride, the girl, who was 18 yesterday said she was undecided what her choice would be.
